

A Web-based Teaching of Quadratic Functions

Guner Ilıcan

Education Faculty, Anadolu University, 26470, Eskisehir, Turkey

gilican@anadolu.edu.tr

There has been an extremely important development in the 21st century on computer technology. These developments have made it necessary to use these technologies in education and training. One of these technologies is a web-based teaching. In this study, quadratic functions for a web-based learning material were designed. Students’ success in learning the functions via web-based instructional materials has been evaluated with traditional education. The results were interpreted.